Applicant's election without traverse of figs. 1-4, claims 1-3 and 5 in the reply filed on 7/29/05 is acknowledged.

Claims 4, 6, 7 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected species, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in the reply filed on 7/29/05.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

Claims, 1 and 3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as being anticipated by Strobel et al (US-6454201). Note “coupling disc” 36 and the first and second friction elements inherent in the friction clutch 42. At least the spring plate 46 provides for the elastic connection.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Strobel et al in view of Fohl (US-5628469).

It is deemed inherent that the apparatus of Strobel has the well-known housing element such as element 60 of Fohl to protect the apparatus from its environment. Alternatively, it would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art to provide the apparatus of Strobel et al with a housing element as taught by Fohl to protect the apparatus from its environment.

Claim 2 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims. The prior art of record does not show or render obvious an apparatus as recited in claim 2.
